BOMB EXPLOSION IN JERUSALEM BAZAAR

Many Casualties In Area Packed With Arabs

CANTON SAVED BY STORM: SECOND ALARM LATER SOUNDED

Canton, To-day.

The beginnings of a heavy storm saved Canton from a possible repetition of Thursday's carnage when an unknown number of heavy bombers and pursuit planes were driven off by lightning flashes.

The air raid alarm was sounded at 7.45 and the planes appeared in considerable number at 8.30. They turned tail when the storm began to break and the "All Clear" was sounded at 8.55 a.m.

They dropped no bombs during their short stay and there were no more than three or four bursts of anti-aircraft fire.

The planes could not be counted owing to thick lowlying clouds.

Rain is now falling heavily and it seems likely that Canton will be given a respite to-day. — Reuter.

SECOND RAID

Canton, Later.

After a sharp storm, the weather has begun to clear up and though there are banks of cloud about, these conditions are ideal for bombing.

Japanese airmen showed realisation of this fact and at 9.25 a.m. a further alarm was sounded, and at 9.30 a.m. the urgent alarm shrieked throughout the city, indicating the probability of an attack on Canton.

Apprehension is felt in view of the Japanese penchant for staging their worst raids at week-ends. — From Our Staff Correspondent.

London, To-day.

Weather permitting, the "Mercury," the upper-section of the Mayo-composition aircraft, will fly the Atlantic from Foynes, Ireland to Canada and the United States on July 20th, carrying half a ton of freight, consisting of newsreels, photographs and newspapers dealing with the Royal visit to Paris.

Police And Troops Out To Prevent Grave Disorders

Jerusalem, To-day.

Frightful scenes were witnessed yesterday following a bomb explosion in a bazaar in the Old City which was densely packed by Arab peasants who had come to town for Friday's devotions in the Mosque.

At least 11 persons including women and children were killed and 15 were injured.

Police and troops have been posted in the main centres of Jerusalem to prevent repercussions of this incident in the Jewish quarters. — Reuter.

Jerusalem, To-day.

All Arab shops in Jerusalem, are closed as a protest against the new bomb outrages and many Jewish shops, fearing an attack, are following suit.

The curfew was re-imposed at 8 o'clock and armed police shepherded towards home bus-loads of Jewish residents in the Old City.

The latest outrages have deeply shocked all the communities whose hopes of a gradual return of normality have been rudely shattered.

Haifa was more normal and the majority of the shops opened yesterday afternoon.

In view of the continued cases of arson involving Jewish premises, the shopkeepers in Haifa are marking their premises with a crescent and the Christian Arabs with a cross.

WIRE NETTING ON BUSES

A number of the Europeanised Arabs have changed their "trilby" hats for "tarbushes" and the Jewish buses are encased with wire netting as a protection against bombs.

Strong forces are still posted at strategical centres, but the number (Continued on Page 24)

tinuation is New York, which will be reached via Botwood, Newfoundland, and Montreal.

The flight will begin at night-time, the pilot being one of the Imperial Airways regular staff. — Reuter.

FOUR KILLED IN JAPAN STORM DISASTER

Tokyo, To-day.

At least four were killed and over 100 houses were flooded by the heavy rainstorms which swept through Tohoku in the north-eastern district of Japan.

About 1,500 houses were flooded, 8 embankments destroyed, 12 bridges washed away, roads inundated and several houses demolished in the Aomori Prefecture.

In Akita Prefecture, 800 houses were flooded, 2 bridges destroyed and a third bridge on which six persons were walking was washed away. — Reuter.

His Excellency the Governor has appointed Mr. George Charles Moss to act as Superintendent, Fire Brigade, during the absence on leave of Mr. Jack Cooper Fitz-Henry, or until further notice.

Diary Of A Lady With A House

By ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN

Monday—went to look for some new little tables. Here are some bright thoughts I picked up. . . . a table with a sunken hole in its top to hold a metal container for flowers or plants; an end table with a radio in its base; a two tiered coffee table, which makes serving tea or coffee easier as the lower level can hold extra cups, napkins and the like; a sewing table of mahogany that's dignified enough to go in the living room to hold pick-up work.

Tuesday—Lunch with a fashion expert who gave me tips. By all means a hat with a veil. I don't know yet whether I can quite take a veil, but she said I'd better.

Wednesday—Went to Jessica Dragonette's and stayed for tea. A petite little thing is she with her light hair and brown eyes.

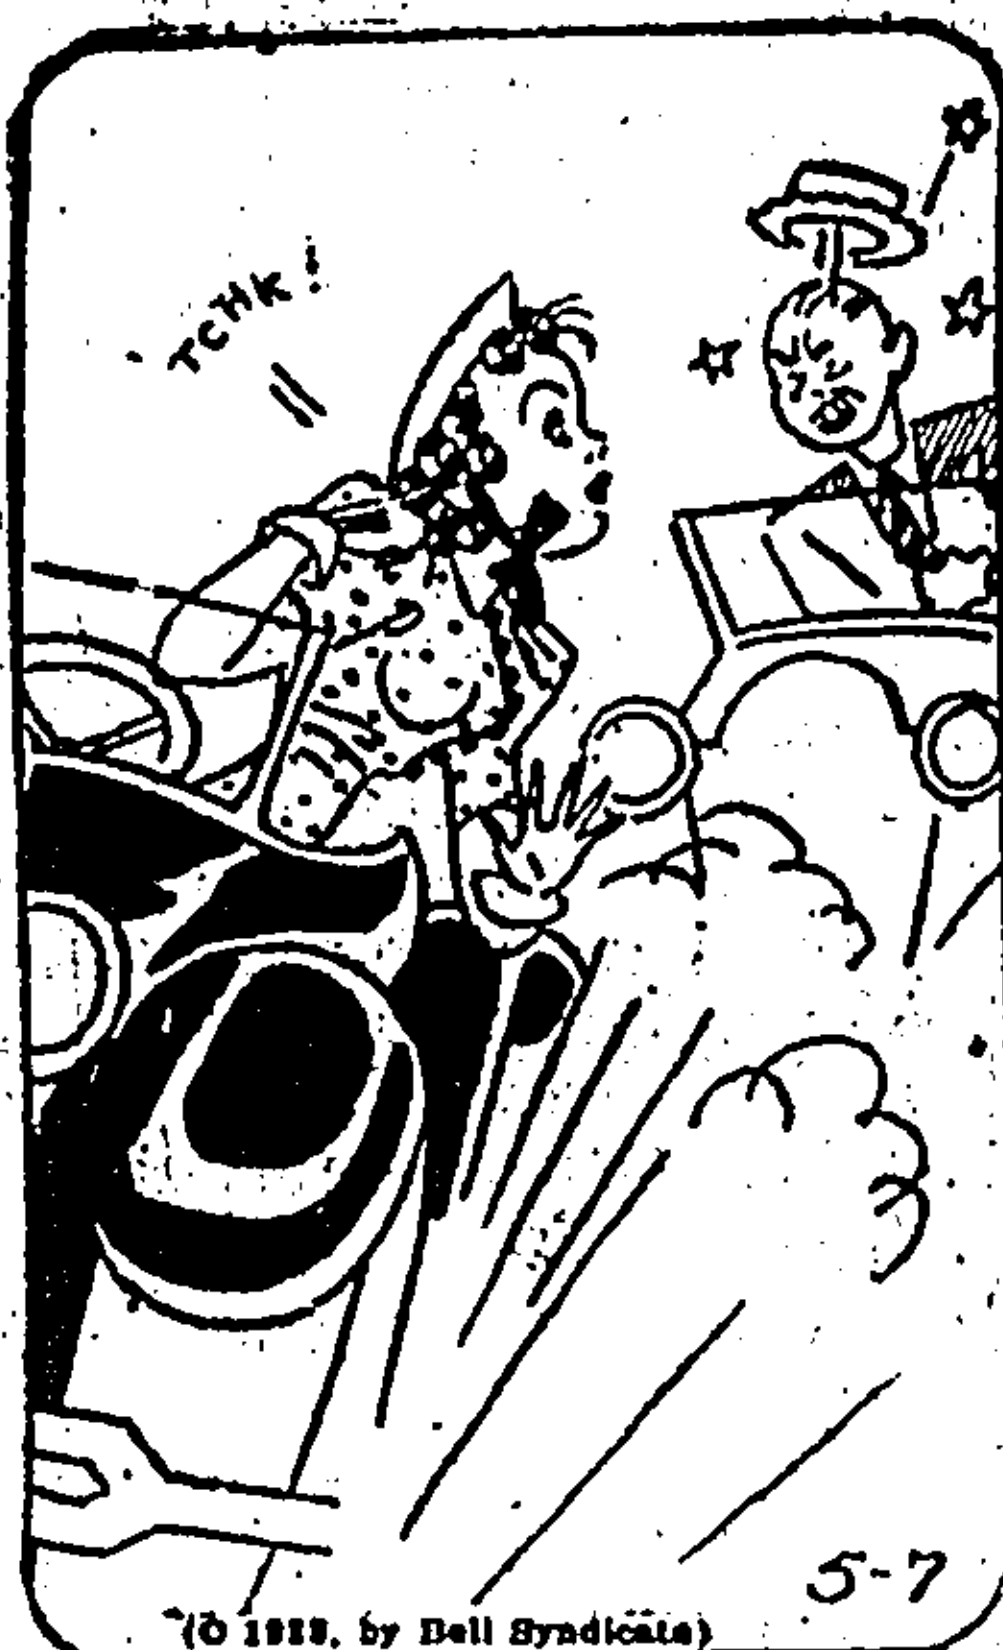

Thursday—I have to keep remembering not to "do and don't" the children over things just because they bother me. There's a fine line of distinction there, but a well-known child psychologist told me the other day that most rules are made for the convenience of parents. That's something to think about when we see little boy romping on our new bedspread. We'd just as soon he wouldn't; but is there any real reason why he shouldn't? It's an elegant place to play, and about as safe as any. He'll get over the yen soon enough anyway. There are enough necessary prohibitions without raising Cain about the things that don't matter in the long run.

Friday—Drove out to the house this afternoon. A rambling white house with swimming pool and gardens and Mrs.—is a poised and gracious person who takes a lot of pride in arranging cut flowers. In fact she has a delightful little flower room with zebra wall paper and yellow curtains, tall stools and lots of table space.

If one or two fresh sausages are placed on the top of beans when cooking, they add to the flavour of the beans. If you use canned beans, put the sausages on top of the beans when they are removed from the can to saucepan and placed in the oven to heat.

When lighting a birthday cake use a taper. Light the candles in the centre first and those on the outside later.

Witty Kitty

A man who gets fresh over a scraping acquaintance generally has overlooked the fact that he may be taken in.

(Left)—Sleek, snappy satin lastex fashions the bright blue suit below, printed in white "stars and comets." The hooded beach cape is snowy white terry cloth, the wedge soled beach shoes cork and white fabric. (Right)—An unusually smart dressmaker suit of red, white and blue striped, and "scrawled" cotton, lined throughout for swimming. The tall beach hat white straw and blue cotton. Selected by Ninon from a local store. To find which one, call DO. 1414, Local 1000.

GINGER GRAPE PUNCH

1 cup water.
1 quart grape juice.
1 quart gingerale.
Juice of 2 lemons.
Juice of 5 oranges.

Dissolve sugar in water and bring to boiling point. Cool and add to other ingredients. Pour over cracked ice. Serve in tall glasses.—Edith M. Barber.

When cleaning oilcloth do not use either soap or ammonia, as they fade the colours and give a dull look. Wash with a flannel wrung out in warm water and rinse over with skimmed milk. Rub with a dry cloth and a beautiful gloss will result.

When boiling eggs, wet the shell thoroughly in cold water before placing in the boiling water and they will not crack.

A pair of tweezers are very convenient for pulling out weeds in gardens where small plants are growing.

IT IS ONLY because their lives are so brief that cut flowers are an extravagance. Here's a new idea for floral decorations, a method which prolongs the lives of the blooms to two or three weeks. They are arranged in this sealed and inverted bowl so that they are completely under water. Base is of smooth black catlin.

USE hot milk instead of cold when mashing potatoes. Besides making the task of beating much easier, the potatoes will be lighter and whiter.

GLASS-CLOTH and tea-towels are usually hard and difficult to wipe with when new. To remove the dressing, soak them in cold water, to which two or three tablespoonfuls of epsom salts have been added, then wring them and hang them up to dry. They will be quite soft and ready for use.

TO remove ink-stains from washing materials, soak the affected part in equal quantities of vinegar and lemon juice leave for a few hours, rubbing the fabric together occasionally, then wash with arm soap-suds. As the material is not weakened by this treatment, it can be repeated if necessary.

WHEN painting or staining woodwork, keep a bottle of turpentine within easy reach, so that, if splashes are made, they can be instantly wiped off.

Have It Well In Advance

Not only brides, but most women feel that a permanent wave is an essential at this time of the year. You want the hair to look its best with the minimum of fussing, you want it to remain in wave instead of hanging limp and dank, and you want it to weather wind and water.

After all if every woman feels all this is essential, the bride doubtless feels that it is doubly important for her to have a good permanent. And it is.

SUCCESS FACTORS

Briefly, there are several things that contribute to the success of a wave. First, the condition of your own hair. And that is why I cautioned a recent article a pre-conditioning campaign.

The method selected and the solution and heating time used should be governed entirely by the type and texture of the head of hair to be waved. There are quite a number of reputable methods—machine and machineless waves. Leave it to a good operator to recommend the method best suited to your hair.

The operator, by the way, is the most important factor, not only because this is highly technical work requiring specialised knowledge, but because an experienced permanent waving operator can "tell" hair textures, the heat required by each individual, the solution and so on. If you have seen a head of hair blocked and wrapped by a true expert you know how sleek and "clean" it looks, not a hair out of place. Still further, it's the expert who takes test curls thus eliminating any possible error in judgment.

ALLOW TO "SET"

It is well to have the wave sometime in advance and let the hair "set" for a few days without even combing it vigorously or shampooing. Then the wave may last longer and be firmer. For the bride, it is especially important to have the wave in advance so that it will not look "new" or too kinky under her veil, but soft and natural.

ELSIE PIERCE.

The bride has planned her make-up to harmonise with her pale ivory wedding gown of satin and net. Her permanent is given several weeks in advance and a soft, flattering coiffure created.

WHEN soup is over-salted, add a large potato, and cook for fifteen minutes longer. The potato, having absorbed most of the salt, can then be removed.

WHEN cooking potatoes in their jackets, scrub them well, and cut a narrow strip of peel entirely round the centre of each potato. When cooked, the skins will slip off without any trouble.

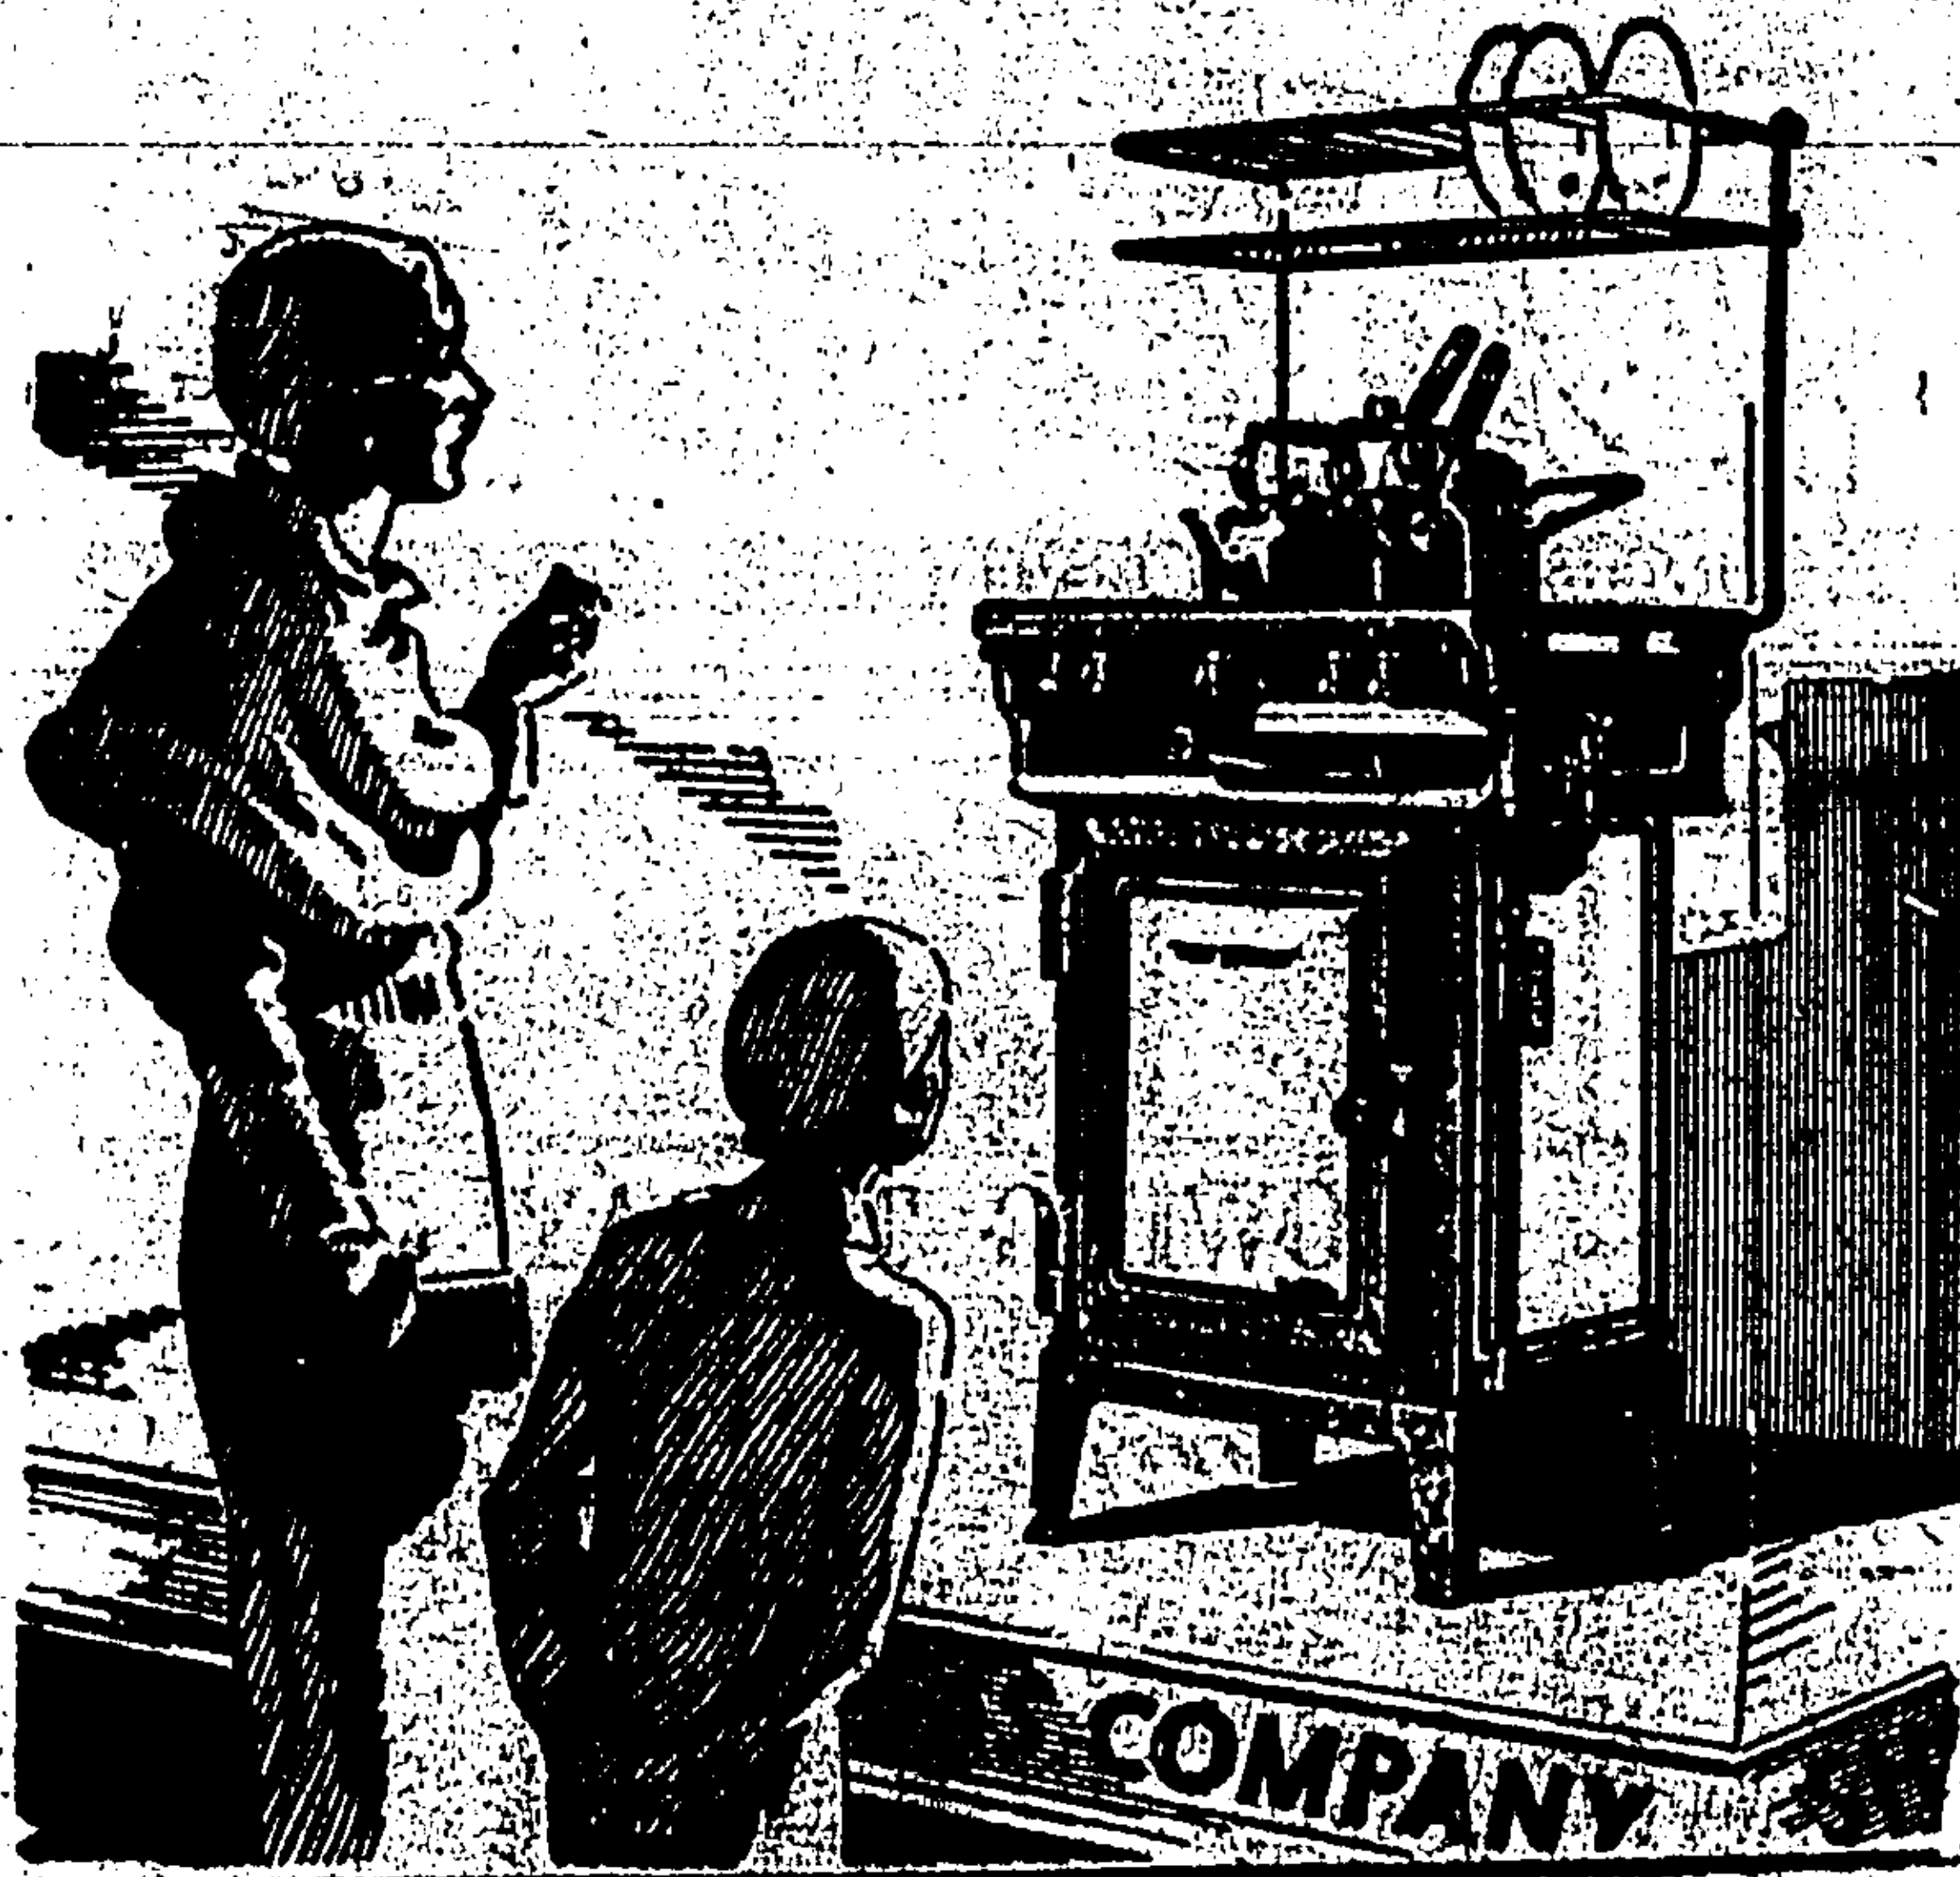

IT is sometimes difficult to fit new linoleum into awkward corners, or round cupboards and other fixtures. It is a good plan to cut out a paper pattern first, and let it serve as a guide.

WHEN washing white spun silk, fuji, or crepe de Chine, add a tablespoonful of methylated spirits to the last rinsing water. This gives the fabric a slight stiffness, and prevents it from turning yellow.

STUBBORN grease-stains on stone steps can be removed in the following way. Cover the stains with a paste of fuller's earth and water, and leave it on overnight. In the morning scrape off the paste, and put in its place a lump of washing-soda. Pour over this some boiling water to dissolve it, and then scrub the steps in the usual way.

Better Transportation Facilities Between Yunnan, Burma Needed

Co-Operation Would Benefit China, Britain

By JOHN AHLERS

Arms and munitions are not yet of consequence in the trade and traffic along the overland route from Kunming, capital of Yunnan Province, to Bhamo in Burma. Although this trade since the outbreak of the war experienced a comparatively strong increase, this increase is entirely due to a larger turnover in goods for peaceful consumption.

Tengyueh is the Chinese customs station on this route. The value of goods passed through this station rose from $2,404,000 in the first five months of the previous year to $3,383,000 in January-May, 1938, i.e. by more than 40 per cent. This fact shows that there are possibilities of an extension of Chinese foreign trade via his route.

Exports via Tengyueh in the periods in question increased by 20 per cent. from $1,850,000 to $2,218,000, chiefly as a consequence of larger exports of Szechwan yellow silks to Burma. Imports via Tengyueh even rose by more than 100 per cent. from $554,000 to $1,165,000, the increase being noticeable in all sorts of import goods. But exports still exceeded imports on this route by two to one.

As compared with the total of China's foreign trade, the trade along the Yunnan-Burma route is still almost negligible. Imports from Burma overland amounted to only 0.81 per cent. of the Chinese import total, while overland exports to Burma constituted only 0.89 per cent. of China's total exports. The trade turnover on the French Railway from Yunnan to Haiphong was more than six times as large.

Important As Reserve Line

But the Kunming-Bhamo route is of great importance as a reserve line of communications between the still independent parts of China and the outside world in case that foreign trade via Canton should become impossible. The problem of improving the route and of the eventual construction of a railway here, therefore, has been attracting the attention of China's National Government since the beginning of the war to an ever increasing degree.

The Yunnan-Burma route is extremely difficult, and the transport of goods on a large scale encounters here with extraordinary obstacles. Before the war, regular overland transports took 13 days from Kunming to Tali only, and another 25 days from Tali to Bhamo, making a total of 38 days of journey along the road.

Recently some particularly difficult sections of the Kunming-Tali part of the route have been much improved. The Burmese authorities also have constructed a good road, easily passable even for heavy motor traffic, from Bhamo to the Sino-Burmese frontier. The whole distance from Kunming to Bhamo, therefore, at present, can be made in a little less than thirty days.

But thirty days of traffic along the road are far too long, and much too expensive, for many goods of importance in China's foreign trade which, if the journey were shorter and its costs lower, would take this road. On the road from Kunming to Tali much construction work is actually continued, and there are prospects that this road will be converted into a first-class motor road next fall.

Road Impassable

The greatest difficulties, however, are encountered on the Tali-Tengyueh section of the route, parts of which are practically impassable during most of the rainy season.

Here a great number of extremely steep and deep valleys have to be crossed, among them the canons of the Mekong and the Salween Rivers in particular. Primitive and insecure suspension bridges are now swinging across these valleys, and a series of extraordinary engineering feats would have to be executed if these bridges were to be replaced by strong modern steel bridges fit for heavy motor traffic.

On the Tali-Tengyueh sector the construction of a railway, in the end, would not involve considerably larger expenditure than that of a really good and durable motor road.

The problem of railway construction in these parts is commonly looked upon as a Sino-British problem, although it is not of necessity an international question. The Chinese are completely free to construct in their own territory whatever railway they want to build. The geographical difficulties to be overcome all are found in Chinese territory, and where the route between Manyun and Warabum finally leaves China it is about to enter into the Irrawaddy plain.

But some amount of Sino-British co-operation, of course, would be advisable and recommendable from the outset. There is the problem of linking the improved road or the railway with the Burmese system of communications. Bhamo, the first important place which the route from Kunming meets in Burma, unfortunately is without railway connections.

In order to connect a Kunming-Tengyueh railway with the Burmese railway system, the latter would have to be extended in the direction of Bhamo either from Mandalay in the south, or from Myittha in the north. But also greater transport facilities between Yunnan and Bhamo alone, if no immediate connection with the Burmese railways would be established, would be of great importance, as Bhamo is the terminus of the Irrawaddy river shipping to and from Rangoon.

Obviously Burma should be economically greatly interested in improved communications by land with South-western China. A considerable amount of Chinese transit trade would take the way via Burma, and thereby the Irrawaddy shipping, the Burmese railways, the port and the trade of Rangoon would certainly profit.

From this angle some Burmese or British participation in a large-scale enterprise to improve the Yunnan-Bhamo route, or to construct a railroad here, would be justified, and China would be well prepared to accept such participation. In case of railway construction, considerable orders for rails, steel bridges, machine tools, and other material and machinery not produced to the partner in such an enterprise.

Makes a Hit in "Vivacious Lady"

Frances Mercer, daughter of Sid Mercer, nationally known sports writer, is definitely in the movies as a result of her attractive work in "Vivacious Lady" in principal support to Ginger Rogers and James Stewart. As Ginger's rival in love, Frances does a hilarious piece of work, the highlight of which is her catch-as-catch-can slap-fest with Ginger. Although she loses the decision in this bout, she gets a big hand for her acting.

NOW HE'S GOT THE MIDAS TOUCH

Kenneth Leigh smiled when he was called the man with the midas touch. "Fifteen years ago," he exclaimed, "you would have named me the man with the lazarus touch. I was penniless and down and out, starving in Sydney then, with my trousers held together with a safety pin. . ."

I glanced incredulously at the cheerful, stocky figure in the neat grey suit.

No wonder I was puzzled. It's rare to hear a man with a manor and fourteen acres talk of hunger, rarer still when that man also possesses property worth £300,000 and an income of over £25,000 a year.

But Mr. Leigh merely shrugged at my surprise.

"Yes, I starved," he went on, "and the only difference between the hungry man I was, and the rich man I am was an original idea.

"The idea came years after I had worked my way back to England, and was selling toys from a stall in Petticoat-lane.

"By chance I heard the War Office wanted to dispose of 250,000 pairs of Army boots, and I went along to have a look at the goods for sale.

"The other dealers scoffed openly when they saw the motley display on view. Boots, boots, boots, all of them sized from 10 to 16. All of them fitting only the left foot.

PLAYED HIS HUNCH

"But in the midst of the laughter I was thinking. The man who could use that junk would make his fortune.

"And I felt I could do with a fortune. I played my hunch. I planked down my entire savings as a deposit, found myself owning half a million useless boots.

"Useless, did I say? Not quite. For in my mind was the germ that was to become a brainwave.

"I set to work, had some of the boots shortened, had the soles of half the boots torn off, turned over, and sewn on again. That made them real pairs. Now for a market, thought I.

"Then I remembered the Irish. Thousands of Irishmen go around barefooted till their early teens. This gives them a strangely broad foot not catered for in the ordinary market.

"So I shipped half my stock of boots to Dublin. They sold like hot cakes.

"My luck still held. For after the Thames floods I was able to buy another 40,000 pairs of Army boots, damaged by water.

"I made a fortune out of that deal."

"DEAD" HERO WALKS

Peter Ferguson, the 21-years-old undergraduate of Pembroke College, Oxford, who was reported killed with the International Brigade in Spain, is alive and back in England.

When the report of his death reached England his portrait was pinned to a banner and carried at the head of an Oxford May Day demonstration.

WOUNDED

Mr. Beaufort-Palmer, of Rosary-gardens, Old Brompton-road, South Kensington, said last night: "We got news earlier in the week that Peter was alive. We were overjoyed, and it was a special relief to his mother. We had believed him dead, and I actually received his death certificate from Spain.

It appears that after he was wounded in the retreat from Belchite he was separated from the usual means of communication.

"He then fell sick with typhoid, which added to the confusion as to his case.

"Soon after we received news that he was alive he walked into the house. Now he has gone away to recuperate."

IF ARMS RACES GOES ON FUTURE BEING PREPARED IN DARK AND SINISTER

London, To-day.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir John Simon, in winding up the House of Commons debate on the Finance Bill, said that while the course of the world's trade was not too favourable since he had presided over the Budget, the present situation bore no resemblance to the situation which was existing before the depression in 1931.

Sir Simon added: "Britain has the resources, the character, the courage and the history which will see it through.

But if we do not succeed, and the world does not succeed, in finding some way to stop the folly of ever-increasing expenditure for armaments, then it seems that the future we are all preparing for our children is something dark and sinister." — Reuter.

HOWARD HUGHES DRIVES TO THE CITY HALL

New York, To-day.

Howard Hughes and his fliers were given a tremendous reception when they drove through the city yesterday.

Thousands of madly cheering people thronged the pavements, torn paper showered from the windows of the adjacent skyscrapers, bells pealed and motor horns and ship sirens sounded.

Mayor La Guardia of the City of New York welcomed the fliers at the City Hall.

Howard Hughes in replying to the welcome extended by the Mayor said: "The time and effort spent on the flight will be well spent if it has served to increase the brotherhood of fliers worldwide. If the fliers of the world would begin to realise that they are something more than pawns on a chessboard—fresh blood—then I believe that all this killing would come towards a stop." — Reuter.

SOVIET INCURSION IN MANCHUKUO

Tokyo, To-day.

Although an official report regarding the frontier incident on the Manchukuo-Soviet border where Soviet troops entered the territory of Manchukuo, has not yet been received here, the spokesman of the Japanese Foreign Office declared today that the Japanese Government regards the incident as grave.

The spokesman added that according to available unofficial reports the Soviet troops have not yet been withdrawn. The Japanese Kwantung army so he declared is determined to take vigorous measures to bring about a withdrawal of the Soviet troops. — Trans-Ocean.

SOVIET SAYS NOTHING

Moscow, To-day.

No official statement has yet been issued here concerning the incident at Hu-yehun on the frontier of the Soviet Union and Manchukuo. It is however noticeable that the interest in the Far Eastern questions has been on the increase for past few weeks in the Soviet press and has been intensified by the hop from Moscow to Vladivostok which was accomplished in the record time of 24 1/2 hours by the Soviet air ace, Kokinakki. Kokinakki is expected back here on Friday and on this occasion the papers devote long articles to the expansion of the military strength of the Soviet Union in the Far East.

The Commander-in-Chief of the Soviet Military Airfleet Loktiov writes in the "Pravda" that the flight of Kokinakki proves beyond doubt that it is possible for thousands of the Soviet aeroplanes to be transferred with a single day to the Far East. — Trans-Ocean.

JAPAN STARTING NEWSPAPERS IN CHINA

Shanghai, To-day.

A bureau for publicity, sponsored by the pro-Japanese Government at Nanking has been formed here, which plans to publish five newspapers, in the provinces of Kiangsu, Chekiang, Anhwei and at Shanghai and Nanking, according to Chinese quarters. It is pointed out that three newspapers sponsored by the puppets have already been published, at Nanking, Soochow and in the province of Chekiang.

It is declared that the managing director of the Nanking paper has been appointed managing director of the new publishing company and has arrived at Shanghai to prepare publication of the newspaper which is to appear here. — Trans-Ocean.

Japanese Suffer Heavy Losses On Yangtze

Lull At All Points Except Round Hsiangshan

Kiukiang, To-day.

Japanese casualties in recent sanguinary engagements in the Hukou-Pengtseh area have reached the staggering figure of 10,000, according to information from military circles.

The heavy Japanese losses incurred are interpreted by these circles as the principal reason for the present lull on the Yangtze River as the Japanese have to mass reinforcements before they can launch a new general offensive.

It is stated that on Thursday more than 20 Japanese transports loaded with corpses of Japanese army officers and soldiers killed in action steered downstream to Wuhu where they were cremated.

JEWISH SUICIDES IN VIENNA

Vienna.

There is abundant evidence to confirm reports current here that 800 more Vienna Jews and Jewesses attempted suicide during the past few days and that the majority succeeded in taking their lives.

On Saturday—a day on which, in normal circumstances, no Jewish funerals take place—rabbis were officiating continuously at burials and could not finish their task before sunset.

Further confirmation of the suicide reports is provided by visits to the synagogues, the Jewish hospitals and cemeteries, the Palestine Office, and the office of the Jewish Corporation in Vienna. No statistics have been published, however.

The explanation of this terrible increase in suicides is the order issued a fortnight ago, which Herr Buerckel, the High Commissioner, has repudiated.

It demanded the immediate dismissal of all Jewish workers, whether employed by Aryans or by Jews. Herr Buerckel declares that it was issued without his authority; but its devastating effects have overwhelmed the already despairing Jews, who have been dismissed wholesale with no prospect of obtaining other posts.

All Jews occupying flats with windows looking on the streets have been ordered to leave them at once. Their only possible refuge is with Jewish relatives or friends.

Jews are hardly ever seen in the streets of the city, except in queues at the special passport office and in the immediate vicinity of their homes. Very late in the evening they walk swiftly in the quiet streets to get fresh air in this sultry weather.

They are excluded from all parks and public gardens. They cannot enter any cinema, theatre or cafe without constant fear of insults.

All buying of necessities is done at Jewish shops near their homes.

Trade in Vienna is almost stagnant. Tourist traffic throughout

Except for exchange of fire between Japanese warships and Chinese shore batteries there was no major fighting on the Yangtze front yesterday. According to a Chinese official communique, a Japanese warship was hit in the stern and two steam launches were sunk when the Chinese shore batteries shelled the concentration of Japanese vessels in the river at Hukow.

Two Japanese warships and more than 10 steam launches approached Shoe Hill, an islet near Hukow. Chinese shore batteries opened up and they steamed away.

Supported by artillery, the Japanese at Siangkow attacked the Chinese at Hsiangshan in an attempt to dislodge them yesterday morning. Fighting continued until noon when the invaders were driven back with considerable casualties. —Central News.

DANISH PREMIER TAKEN ILL

Copenhagen, To-day.

The Premier, Dr. Thorevald Stauning, was suddenly taken seriously ill yesterday, according to a semi-official statement issued here to-day. The statement fails to give particulars regarding the nature of the Premier's illness. —Trans-Ocean.

Austria is at a standstill.

The financial injury caused by loss of trade and by the acts of dishonest and incompetent trade commissioners has been estimated at not less than £10,000,000 since the annexation. This estimate is probably below the mark.

But unjust stewards cannot easily get money out of the country if they steal it, so that some of the loss may be recovered.

No doubt there are a certain number of honest and efficient commissioners in charge of businesses which have been practically confiscated from Jews, from former members of Dr. Schuschnigg's Patriotic Front, or from ardent Monarchists.

Herr Buerckel is determined that all the rest shall go at once. Exact accounts must be rendered immediately by all the commissioners, of whom there are more than 1,000 in Vienna. —"Daily Telegraph."

POLITICAL COUNCIL ADJOURNS

Hankow, To-day.

The People's Political Council closed yesterday afternoon after a ten day session.

In a manifesto of some 3,000 words, the Council appeals to those in every walk of life to present "a united front and strengthen China's resistance, thus bringing the present hostilities to a successful conclusion and paving the way towards national reconstruction." —Reuter.

KING FAROUK CANCELS TRIP TO FRANCE

Paris, To-day.

King Farouk of Egypt has abandoned his intention of coming to Lyons for the unveiling of a statue of one of his ancestors, according to a Cairo despatch to the paper "Paris Midi," which adds that King Farouk also has renounced the project of visiting Ankara for the purpose of personally signing a Treaty of Mutual Assistance between Egypt and Turkey.

The reason for the King's decision is stated in the despatch as to be the desire to avoid undue fatigue for Queen Farida, who would have accompanied her husband, and whose accouchement is expected in November. It will be recalled that the marriage of King Farouk and Queen Farida was celebrated on January 20th, last. —Trans-Ocean.

His Excellency the Governor has appointed Mr. John Barrow to be District Officer, North, with effect from 11th July, 1938.

BUOYANCY OF GOVERNMENT REVENUE

With Government revenue in May nearly a million dollars greater than in May, 1937, and total revenue since the beginning of the year, nearly $2,000,000 in excess of the comparable revenue in the same period last year, the steady progress towards a bumper financial year is continuing.

Actually, a deficit appears on the month of May, the outgoings totalling $3,554,977.90 as against revenue of $3,164,367.50. This was accounted for by payment of $1,090,415.43 on accounts of military contribution, and abnormally heavy expenditure on behalf of the Kowloon-Canton Railway.

It may be noted that charitable services have involved Government in the expenditure of $223,596 in the first five months of the year, against estimates for the whole year of $214,774.

JAPANESE AIR RAID ON NANCHANG

Nanchang, To-day.

Thirty-four Japanese planes raided Nanchang twice between 8 a.m. and 9 a.m. yesterday, raining over 100 bombs in the suburbs. Three civilians were killed and several houses were wrecked.

In the afternoon three Japanese planes flew to Yushan on the Chekiang-Kiangsi Railway where they dumped over 20 missiles. —Central News.

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

Sister Complex

JIMMY couldn't understand why some fellows were lucky enough to be born without sisters to contend with. Take Butch Osgood, for example. Butch only had a kid brother, and when he didn't want the kid brother around, he'd tell him to stay home, and the kid brother stayed home or Butch slapped his ears down. Also Butch went fishing whenever he liked and could wear old clothes all the time and didn't have to sneak out behind the barn to smoke his cigarettes. He smoked cigarettes right in his own home and his mother and father didn't give two hoots. Butch also had the distinction of being able to lick any boy in the district.

Jimmy wasn't so lucky. Jimmy's folks didn't allow him to smoke, and they made him attend school regularly and he could go fishing only when his home work was done. And then, worst of all, Jimmy had Bette, his twin sister, to contend with. Jimmy lamented his lot. Most of the time he was miserable about it. Like to-day, for instance. To-day Aaron Burt, the son of one of Jimmy's mother's friends, was coming to Fairfield for a visit, and Jimmy's mother decided that it was

Jimmy gasped audibly. He hadn't expected this, or was he prepared for it. He had hoped that Aaron and Bette would immediately vacate, leaving him free to attend the meeting. Jimmy never forget what happened in the next few minutes. Butch bristled and advanced threateningly, an attitude designed to make Aaron cower. Instead, Aaron let go a straight arm punch that set Butch on his heels. Butch roared, advanced, was struck down again. He spat, blinked, charged once more. Aaron neatly ducked a wild and ferocious blow and landed a beautiful jab to Butch's jaw. Butch sat down and didn't immediately rise. He started to, then decided to crawl toward the bushes, reaching which he rose and plunged off hurriedly. Aaron dusted off his hands. "I'm very sorry I had to do that while you were here," he said to Bette. "Gee!" said Jimmy, and swallowed. Blank incredulity was on his face. Aaron swung towards him. "Jimmy, why don't you go find your friend and enjoy yourself?" "Y-y-you mean," gulped Jimmy, "that you don't want me around?" Aaron arched his brows. "I was up to the family to entertain him. Worse, it was up to Jimmy and Bette, because they were all the same age. Jimmy didn't see why Bette couldn't do the entertaining. Gosh, a chap with a name like that was probably used to girls anyway. And, besides, Butch had called an important meeting of the Secret Pirates Club for that very afternoon, and Jimmy, because he was first lieutenant, should really ought to attend.

Aaron Burt was all that Jimmy had feared. He was slight and dark, immaculately dressed in flannels and sport jacket, soft-spoken, perfectly mannered. Jimmy was disgusted. When Bette suggested that she put up a lunch and they take a canoe ride up the river, Jimmy thought that was swell. "You two will have a marvelous time," he cried. "Say, I'll bet Aaron will like that."

"We," said Bette, looking daggers at Jimmy, "will do our best to entertain Mr. Burt, won't we, Jimmy?"

Jimmy saw at once that he had put his foot into it. He became sullen. Aaron offered to paddle the canoe and Jimmy, despite Bette's meaning glance, let him.

A half mile up river, Jimmy had an inspiration. He suggested to Bette that they land at Sawyer's Sand Spit for their picnic. Unsuspectingly, Bette agreed.

The spit was a small, curved beach with dense growth behind. They landed there, and while Aaron and Bette were unpacking the lunch, Jimmy disappeared. He reappeared ten minutes later, and there was an unmistakable look of triumph on his face.

They were half through the lunch when there was a crashing in the bushes and a moment later Butch appeared on the sand spit. Butch's face wore an ugly look, resentful. He informed the trio in no uncertain terms that the sand spit was the recognized territory of the Secret Pirates Club and trespassers weren't allowed.

Bette glanced at Jimmy and the whole thing immediately became clear. She was on the verge of telling Butch exactly what she thought of him and his Pirates Club, when Aaron rose, smiling thinly.

"Run along, sonny," he said to Butch. "You're annoying us."

under the impression that you didn't want me around."

"B—but then I didn't know—I thought—"

"And because of what you thought, you called Butch and outlined a plan which you felt would remedy a situation that to you had been distasteful. Jimmy, I think your sister is swell. If she's agreeable, I'd like to take the canoe and explore the river with her."

He glanced at Bette. She nodded happily.

Jimmy watched with the hurt look of a disappointed heroworshipper while Bette and Aaron gathered up their things and headed for the canoe. Up on the hill behind them he knew Butch would be returning to the hut, where the Secret Pirates met. Any minute now the meeting would be called to order. But suddenly Jimmy had no taste for Butch and the Secret Pirates. (Copyright, 1938, By The Associated Newspapers).

GUN FIRES 7 MILES IN THE AIR

So powerful is the latest anti-aircraft gun now being secretly tested that gunners' eardrums would be shattered every time it is fired were it not for the special helmets they wear.

The gun is the 4.5in. high-velocity gun and it is being supplied to every anti-aircraft brigade. Its effective range is between 35,000 and 40,000 feet, and the shell it fires has an explosive spread of at least 200 yards. The concussion within this area would be sufficient to crumble up the wings and body of the strongest built bomber.

One thick concrete emplacement was cracked clean through when the first shot was fired from the gun. Experienced artillerymen, standing behind the gun, were deaf for days afterwards.

FINANCIAL AID TO CHINA NOT RULED OUT BY BRITAIN

Probability Of Credits Being Extended

Popular Opinion In All Quarters In Favour

London, To-day.

From a trustworthy source Reuter has learned that the impression which was derived from yesterday's reports that the Cabinet at their usual Wednesday meeting had finally turned down the project for a loan to China is incorrect.

Actually the Cabinet merely postponed the scheme, but not in such a manner as to bolt the door against possible revival when the world conditions are more favourable.

Politicians point out that the special legislation for the guarantee, as outlined by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Sir John Simon, in his statement in the House of Commons, "That His Majesty's Government had no power to grant or guarantee a loan without legislation which, in the circumstances, they did not see their way to introduce," is in any case very difficult at this time since the session ends so soon.

Apart from a direct loan, it is known that the question of credits towards China and other directions is being considered. The opinion is expressed that since the fact that a direct loan is at present impracticable, this should assist the prospects of the credits being granted.

WIDE SUPPORT

It is not an exaggeration to say that a large section of the official, the political and the business worlds strongly favours help for China in some form.

The Chinese Campaign Committee, is convening, at a non-Party Round Table Conference on July 18, to consider how China may best be assisted.—Reuter.

'SEVEN DWARFS' MAKE GIANT PROFITS

Last February it seemed absurd that Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" should be booked for 20 weeks at the New Gallery, London. Now the 20 weeks are up—and this astonishing cartoon fairytale is going on indefinitely.

To-morrow marks its 50th performance at this single hall, where 800,000 people have paid more than £75,000 to see it. But that is nothing to its world fame.

Disney and his artists staked their all on its making. It costs £300,000 and took two years to complete; but it will finally gross about £2,500,000.

Already it has been translated into 13 languages, and has broken all cinema records in 30 countries.

Vast revenues are also pouring in from a thousand firms who handle Snow White merchandise, including

Toys, carpets, fireplaces, clocks, handbags, bedding, ties, tooth-brushes and knitting.

WAVE OF POLICE DEATHS

New York.

A strange wave of suicide is sweeping through the New York Police Force.

Inspector Charles Neidig, who last night shot himself in his home, is the eighth member of the force to take his own life since the beginning of the year and the fifth within three months.

When holding an important Manhattan command Neidig was reprimanded by Police Commissioner Valentine after detectives from headquarters raided his district and found gambling houses running.

Neidig was "exiled" to command in another district, although he was absent on sick leave when the raids took place.

Mr. Valentine became Commissioner in 1935, and since then 221 of his men have been dismissed, 5,000 fined, and another 1,000 reprimanded.

BRITISH LOAN TO PORTUGAL?

London, To-day.

Anglo-Portuguese relations are dealt with in an article of the diplomatic correspondent of the "Daily Herald" who asserts that Portugal is allowing her friendship with Franco Spain, also with Italy and Germany to cool off, in order that she may be able to conclude a closer alliance with Britain.

The paper says the British Government is planning to grant a fairly large loan to Portugal for the purpose of development of Portuguese colonies.—Trans-Ocean.

NEW $200,000 SWIMMING POOL SLATED TO BE OPENED TO-DAY

Shanghai, July 12.

Shanghai's new $200,000 playground, complete with a large swimming pool, a fishing pond and an archery range, is opening this morning when the Dalo Swimming Pool, 850 Bubbling Well Road, holds its inauguration ceremony.

Luxuriously appointed, the amusement centre is owned by the Dah Loh Company of which Mr. Loh Lien-kwei, assistant Commissioner of Police, is the head.

Several thousand people have been invited to attend the opening ceremony this morning and to view the grounds which will be open to the general public to-morrow.

One of the largest pools in Shanghai, the Dalo Swimming Pool is 20 metres wide by some 50 metres long and is capable of holding about 2,000 people, according to the management.

Construction of the buildings and the pool was started some three months ago. The plans were drawn by Mr. S. J. Yang, noted local architect.

On the spacious raised terrace beside the pool, a restaurant is operated, where visitors can watch the swimmers while enjoying their drinks or food. Behind the pool is the fishing pond where guests may try their hand in the sport. The pond, the management said, is well-stocked with all kinds of fish.

A foreign chemist has been employed by the firm in order to take charge of the pool's water which is changed four times daily. An archery range has also been built and will be open to the public when the pool throws open its doors.

MARRIAGE

The Wedding of Braz Herculano, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. S. Alves, to Celeste Maria, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. de Figueiredo, will take place on Sunday, 17th July, 1938, at 4.30 p.m. at St. Terese's Church, Kowloon Tong. No invitations are being issued, but all relatives and friends are cordially invited to the ceremony and the reception afterwards at 2, York Road, Kowloon Tong.

Hong Kong, Saturday, July 16, 1938.

EFFECTIVE MORALITY

The moral sense which revolts at the bombing of civilian populations will sooner or later find effective expression. The argument is frequently made that no limits can be placed on war and the only remedy is to stop war. And it should be recognised that civilised countries have adopted all the weapons which have been used in uncivilised manners — poison gas, flame-throwers, submarines, bombing planes. Also the fact should be faced that issuing protests with one hand and indispensable supplies for civilian bombers with the other is a weird service to international morality.

Yet there is a deep sense of justice and humanity which can save civilisation from self-destruction. Giving this moral sense effective expression is the inescapable work of Christian peoples to-day. Two developments recently have indicated some progress. One is the response to the somewhat belated discovery that Americans are furnishing a major part of the material Japan is using in the horrible bombing of Chinese non-combatants. So far this feeling has resulted officially only in Mr. Cordell Hull's plea to plane manufacturers to cease exporting and the Pittman resolution passed by the Senate's condemning civilian bombing and starting a study to find methods to deal with it.

One could wish for official action of a more resolute type, but meanwhile popular sentiment has been stirring and new life is felt in the unofficial movement for voluntary boycotts. The question of wise and effective measures has not been answered, but feeling that is deep enough and sincere enough will find a way.

The second evidence of an advance in the task of checking civilian bombing was the recent discussion in the House of Commons. Mr. Chamberlain endorsed

ADVERSARIA

THOMAS MANN, exiled German author, said a great many things during his current tour of the United States, but nothing he said is much more worthy of serious consideration than his remark in New York that "Freedom must learn the art of self-defence."

HOPE is the dream a man has when he is awake.

CLOSE UPON the heels of the news that the American naval expansion bill, providing for a 20 per cent increase in the size of the United States Navy, at a cost of U. S. $1,156,000,000, has become a law—is the news of an immense Budget deficit.

THIS MEASURE of appropriating funds for naval construction will give America her biggest navy in history, and also one of her biggest tax headaches and deficits. In fear and bitterness the peoples of the world pay, and pay, and pay; to what end? To protect themselves against each other, while the gods laugh sardonically.

CHINA'S HANDFULS of bombs here and there; Spain's 20 to 40 planes bombing at a time; mere hints of what is to come, if we accept the prophecies of the famed Dutch airplane designer Anthony H.G. Fokker. According to Mr. Fokker, in the bigger and bitterer wars in the future there will be 200 or more planes in a convoy, each with 3,000 pounds of bombs, speeding at 300 miles an hour, and letting fall indiscriminate death and mangling on city population.

WAR MAY become its own cure, as a disease may secrete a virus that gives immunity. Cities that have taken centuries to build, levelled in a quarter of an hour? Cultures that have taken a thousand years to develop, blasted into debris and flying legs and arms and head and torsos?

FOKKER'S fearful forecast has only his glimpse of hope—war may become its own cure! If annihilation is a cure.

T.C.G.

Mr. Hull's speech calling for joint action to limit war's inhumanity. Mr. Chamberlain also announced that Britain would abandon her "police bombing" if that stood in the way of a general agreement to abolish civilian bombing.

He explained that the British practice is to give twenty-four-hour notice for the evacuation of non-combatants. But his explanation was not very well received, and other members gave a distinct impression that they would be satisfied only when the moral position had been wholly cleared.

These evidences of awakening thought are gratifying. And despite difficulties the truth is that genuine morality can find expression. The important thing is to see that it is genuine.

Factories Spread Like Mushrooms In Shanghai Settlement

Industrial Outlook Definitely Improving

While literally hundreds of factories in the International Settlement's northern and eastern districts and in Nantao and Chapei have discontinued operations since the outbreak of hostilities here last August, there are more factories in several industrial categories within the Settlement to-day, than there were ever before.

Actual figures are not available, for it is impossible to keep a close check on the numbers. Some of these factories are fly-by-night establishments, operating for a week, sometimes for two months, and then closing down because the immediate demand and that of the immediate future will by then have been met. These small factories are equipped with primitive apparatus, which costs little to build and can be manufactured locally.

SPREAD LIKE MUSHROOMS

Factories during the past month have spread with mushroom rapidity, at a pace which made it impossible for the S. M. C. Industrial Section to keep track of all of them.

Factories which, prior to the outbreak of hostilities, were operating in Nantao are establishing themselves again in the French Concession — those of them whose owners have been fortunate enough to salvage their machinery after payment of large sums of money to the "government" in control there.

Factories formerly situated in Hongkew, Yangtzepoo, even those which operated in Wusih and Kashing, are showing partiality to the Settlement's western district. Some of them are situated in areas well within S. M. C. jurisdiction, others were, or are in the process of being erected on extra-Settlement roads, on former Central Government-controlled areas. Not more than 50 per cent of the proposed factories are operating or are being built to operate in areas completely under the control of the Shanghai Municipal Council.

It is a confirmed fact that owners of factories on extra-Settlement Roads, areas which are overrun with organised loafers and protection rackets off the municipal roads, are paying large sums of money to "officials" or "protectors."

Here The China Press was informed, Chinese factory owners pay "ransom" rather than go out of their way to seek protection.

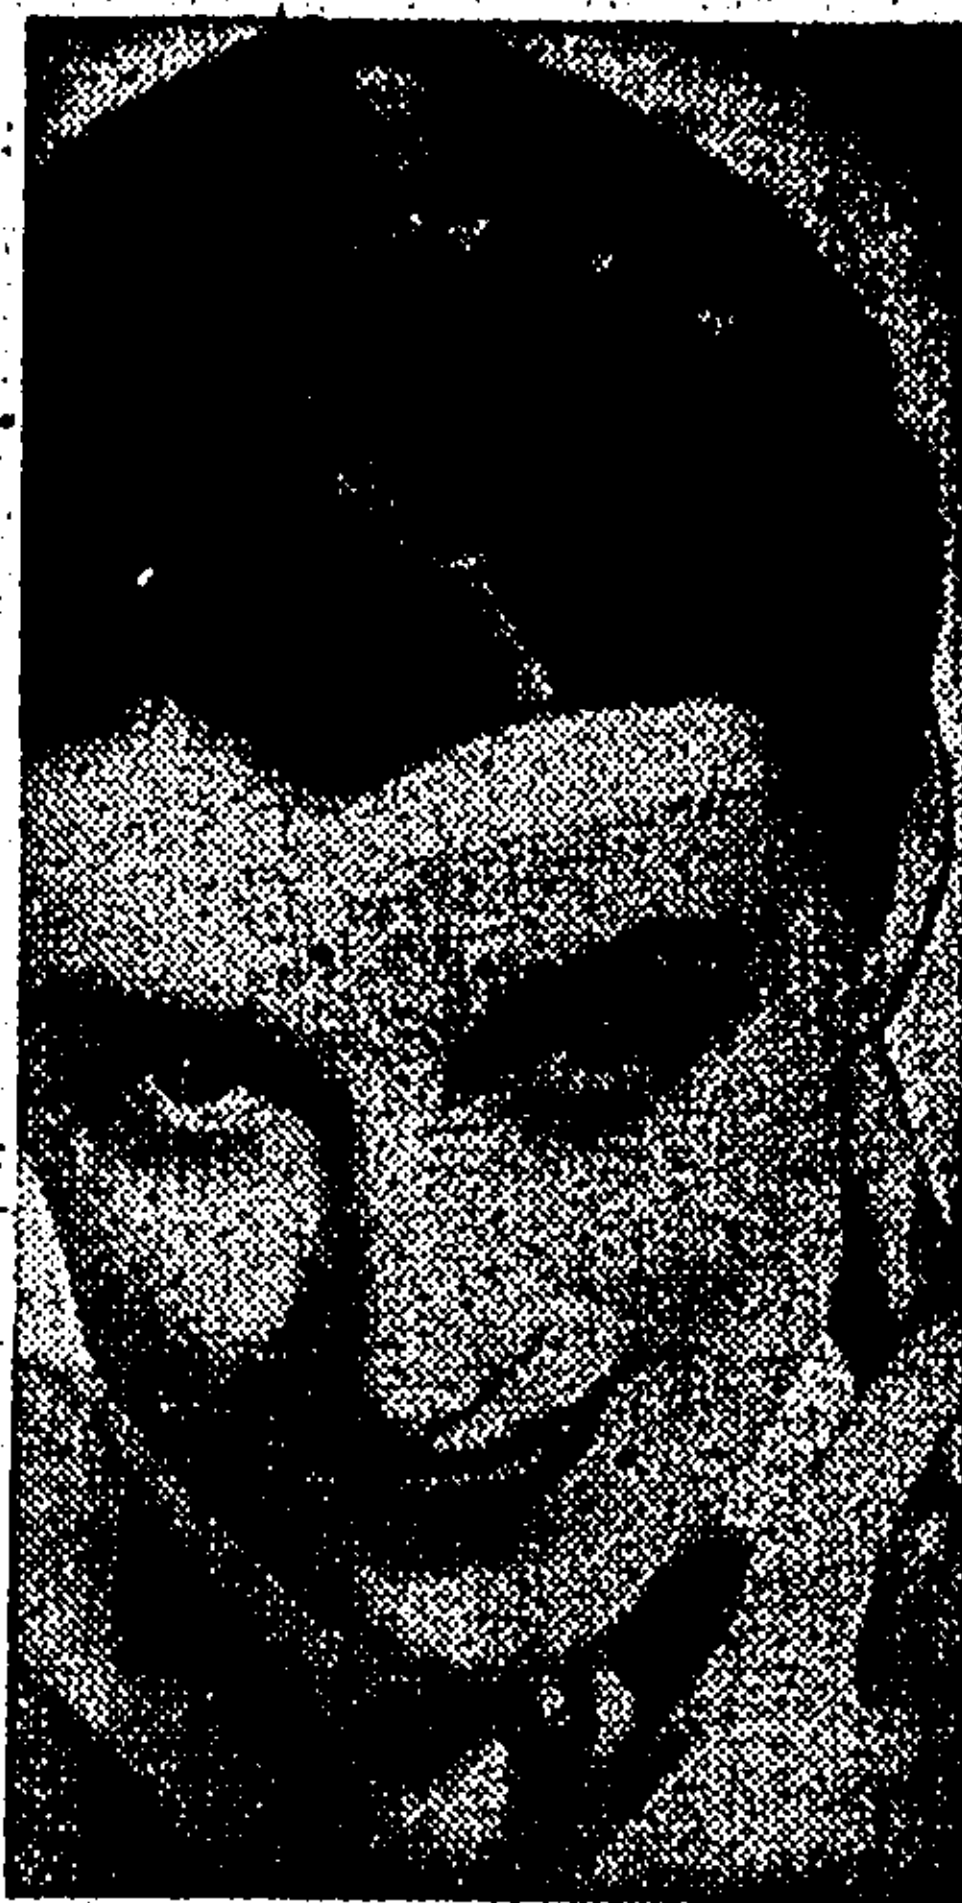

The general trend of factories is to build dyeing works, and of surprisingly extensive proportions. Also, there is a greater number of silk filatures in the Settlement now than there was at any other time in the area's industrial history.

Prior to the hostilities, there were only two silk filatures in the Settlement. To-day there are seven — some of which have transferred their operations from Wusih, former Yangtse Valley centre for this industry, and from Kashing.

Silk filatures are equipped at low cost. The machinery is light, and is made of wood with metal fittings. The material and workmanship is available here at a reasonable price.

LARGE CONCERNS STAY IN

In addition, weaving mills and tanning factories are springing up on extra-Settlement roads. There is also a rubber factory. A glass works has also begun to operate.

Beatrice Lillie, the British comedienne who has been called the "Laugh-line of Empire" romps with Bing Crosby and Mary Carlisle in "Doctor Rhythm" Paramount's musical comedy, coming Sunday to the Queen's and Alhambra Theatres Simultaneously.

It is significant, however, that all factories of any size at all are located within the areas controlled by the Shanghai Municipal Council.

Textile mills are at present operating at a large profit. Competition has been reduced by more than half and quoting their prices in foreign currency, exports are bringing in undreamt of returns at the present rate of exchange.

All these factories cater to an increased local demand, and most of the Chinese factories export their products. Many factories which formerly had no export business at all are now shipping cargoes to Wenchow, South China, via Hong Kong, and the South Seas.

There is an increased demand in the South Seas, for 90 per cent of the retail trade there is controlled by Chinese merchants. Prior to the hostilities, they imported Japanese-manufactured goods. Since, there has been a widespread boycott on Nipponese cargoes, and Chinese products are more than ever in demand.

N. CHINA TRADE DIFFICULT

Local Japanese factories are said to be encountering difficulties. A large part of their output is consumed locally, but their exports are confined to Japanese-controlled areas in China, mostly North China.

Trade with North China, in view of the new currency which has been circulated there, is difficult. The currency is not too welcome at Japanese banks, and there is no raw material worth mention which the local mills and factories can purchase in the north.

Despite the increasingly promising industrial outlook, figures obtained by "The China Press" show clearly that the situation can not begin to compare with the state of affairs.

JOB STATISTICS SIGNIFICANT

In June, 1937, 321,070 male and female labourers were employed by various industries. Last month statistics show that there were only 142,603 holding down jobs.

While this figure is less than half of last year's total, it is better by more than 20,000 than the figure of May, 1938, which is 121,213. The improvement shows that 21,390 men and women have found employment in one month. It is not expected, of course, that this rate can continue, but there are indications that further increases in employment are in sight.

In June there were 6,200 labourers employed in the central district, a figure which exceeds by 370 the figure of June, 1937. In the western district, 50,033 workers had jobs against 36,336 in June of 1937.

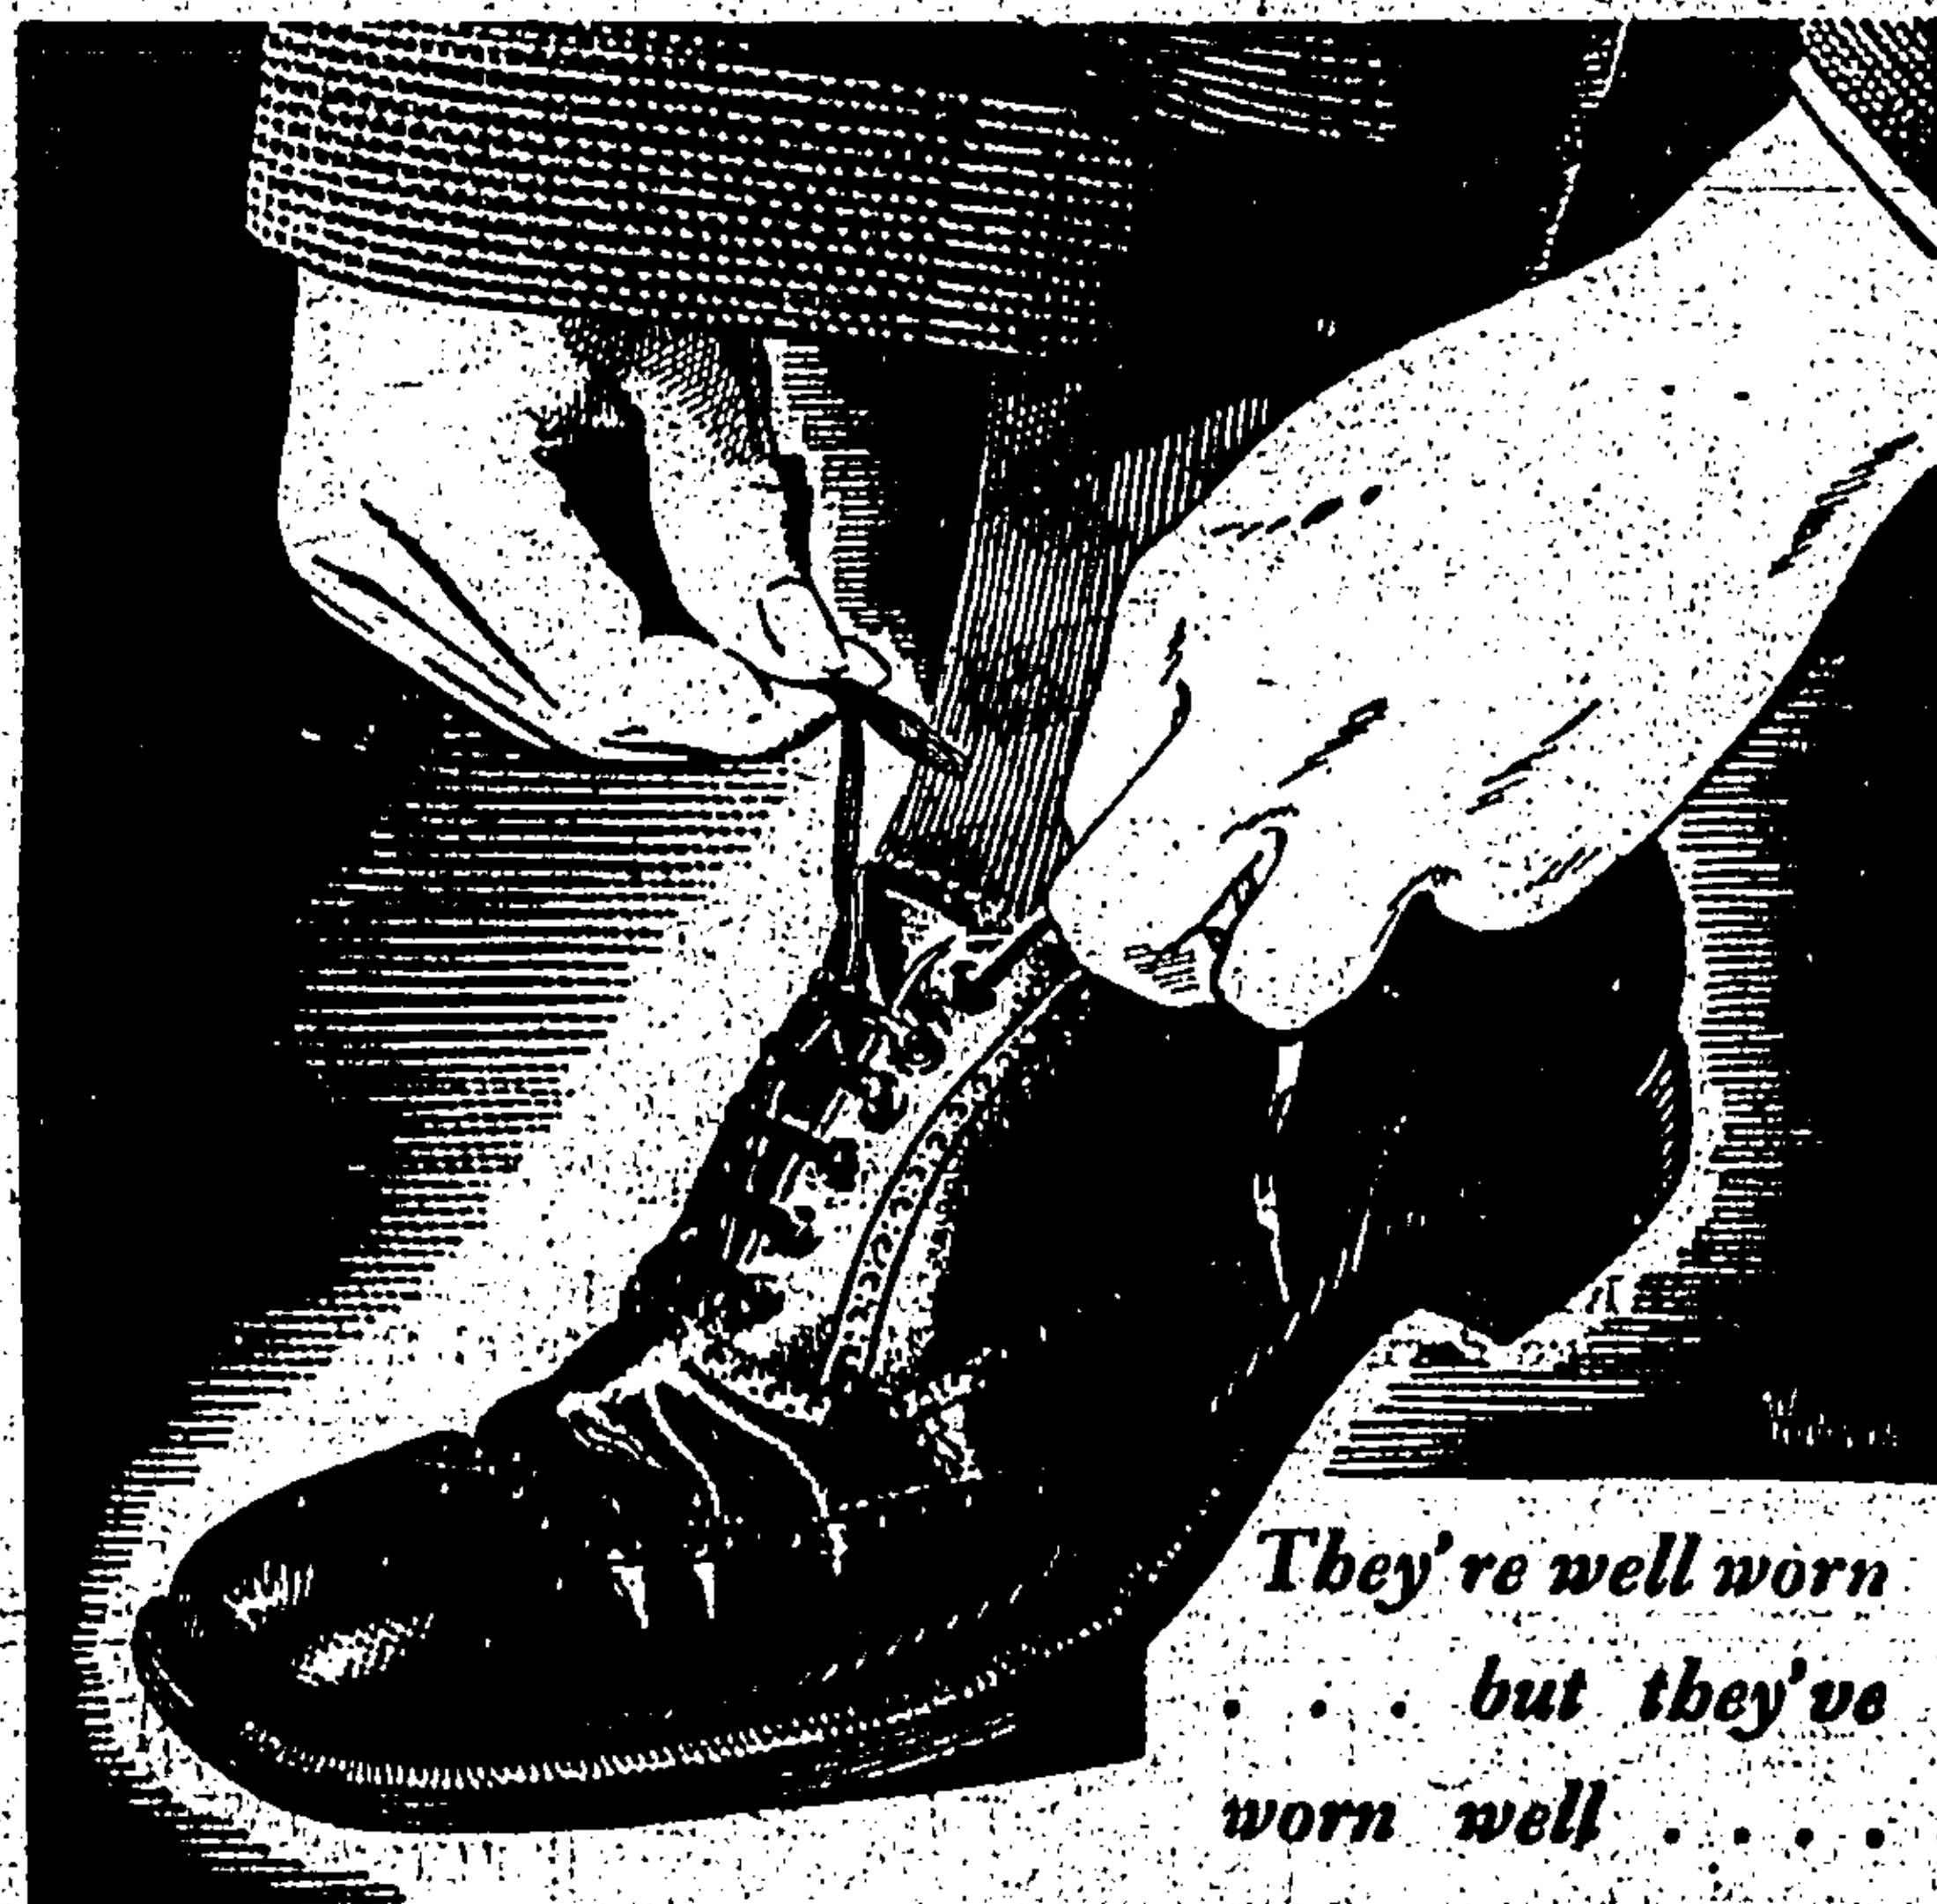

But here the favourable comparisons end. Whereas 36,953 were employed on extra-Settlement roads in June 1937, there were only 19,900 last month. And the 1937 figure of 16,831 labourers in the northern areas has dwindled to 6,160.

DIFFERENCE GLARING

The most glaring difference is in the statistics of the eastern district. Last year in June 115,120 workmen were busy in various categories of industry. Last month this vast area employed only 49,140.

In Frenchtown, too, the figures have fallen, although here not because of destruction of factories but because of reduced demand. While the Concession's industrial establishments gave work to 30,000 men and women in June a year ago, last month saw only 8,000 on the pay rolls.

The few factories in Pootung kept 2,900 men and women at work last month as against 20,000 last year, and Chapei, which kept busy the hands of 35,000 in June 1937, has not enough work within its large territory to fill the daylight hours of a one-armed cripple.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON SERMON

Subject: Life

The subject of the Lesson Sermon in all Christian Science Churches to-morrow July 17th will be "Life."

The Golden Text will be "as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself." (John 5:26) Among others the following citations will be read from the Bible, "And now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all his ways and to love him and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul. To keep the commandments of the Lord and his statutes, which I command thee this day for thy good. For this commandment which I command thee this day, it is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off. But the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it. I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing: therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live: that thou mayest love the Lord thy God; and that thou mayest obey his voice and that thou mayest cleave unto him: for he is thy life and the length of thy days." (Deut. 10: 12-30: 11-14 19-20).

The following citations will also be read from the Christian Science Test-book "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy "What is Life? Life is divine Principle, Mind, Soul, Spirit. Life is without beginning and without end. Eternity, not time, expresses the thought of Life and time is no part of eternity. One ceases in proportion as the other is recognised. Time is finite; eternity is forever infinite. Life is neither in nor of matter. What is termed matter is unknown to Spirit, which includes in itself all substance and is Life eternal. God is divine Life, and Life is no more confined to the forms which reflect it than substance is in its shadow.

If life were in mortal man or material things, it would be subject to their limitations and would end in death. Life is Mind, the creator reflected in His creations. If He dwelt within what he creates, God would not be reflected but absorbed; and the Science of being would be forever lost through a mortal sense, which falsely testifies to a beginning and an end. Because Life is God, Life must be eternal, self-existent. Life is the everlasting I am, the Being who was and is and shall be, whom nothing can erase." (Page 468: 331: 289).

The m/v "Felix Roussel" will most probably arrive at Hong Kong, from Marseilles and Saigon, on Tuesday the 19th inst. at 3.30 p.m. She will be dispatched for Shanghai and Kobe on Wednesday the 20th inst. at 7.00 a.m. Passengers who wish to spend the night on board will be received from 9.00 p.m. onwards on the 19th inst.

"NEWSGIRL" HAD £4,000 IN BANK

Glasgow, Sunday.

Police searching the dingy Gal-lowgate tenement where Mrs. Blackburn, a 75-year-old crippled Glasgow newspaper seller, died shortly after midnight yesterday found bankbooks revealing her to have left at least £3,000 or £4,000.

For 30 years she had made her home in a slum, and spent her days propped at a corner of Argyle Street, one of the city's busiest thoroughfares, crying the news.

Apparently she was a widow, but to her neighbours she was simply "Granny" Blackburn.

REFUSED ALL AID

One of them told me: "She lived by herself and seemed very poor. Time and again we offered to help her, but she would have nothing to do with any of us."

"We never thought for a minute she was all right for money."

"About ten years ago she had an accident and she had to walk with crutches after that. Even then she went her own independent way and would have nothing to do with the neighbours."

The police are trying to trace Mrs. Blackburn's relatives in Manchester.

RAY WILL NOT CRIPPLE WAR PLANES

New German Apparatus For Bombing Planes

Reports of new German bombers which are alleged to be equipped with an invisible ray apparatus to stop enemy planes, are causing British aircraft makers no concern, states "Reynolds."

We have a simple means of stopping all these electrical rays, I was told yesterday by the technical expert. They are as easy to deal with as radio interference.

The German machines said to be fitted with ray apparatus are Heinkel H.60 bombers. The rays are sent out by ultra-short wave radio sets, their purpose being to put out of action the electrical ignition system of opposing aircraft.

SETS ON GROUND

Similar sets on the ground and in captive balloons would, it is claimed, stop enemy aircraft crossing the frontier. By the use of heavy-oil engines, which do not require electrical ignition, German bombers would be immune from the effects of their own rays.

Any electrical ray can be nullified by screening the ignition system. Most aircraft engines are already screened, not on account of rays, but to prevent electrical interference with wireless reception. All the latest R.A.F. machines equipped with short-wave radio are protected in this way.

Protection consists of a complete metal covering for the sparking plugs, electric cables and magnetos.

CHILDREN'S PUZZLE

Tic, Tac, Toe

EVERY ONE KNOWS THIS GAME—A SQUARE OF NINE CELLS, IN WHICH TWO PLAYERS ALTERNATELY MARK A CROSS AND A NOUGHT, THE FIRST TO GET THREE ON A LINE WINNING.

IF TWO PLAYERS OF EQUAL SKILL MEET, THE GAME SHOULD ALWAYS BE DRAWN. IF CIRCLE STARTS IN THE CENTER, CROSS MUST TAKE A CORNER OR HE WILL LOSE. IF CIRCLE TAKES A CORNER, CROSS MUST AT ONCE TAKE THE CENTER. THE FIRST PLAYER MAY SAFELY START ANYWHERE AND BE SURE OF A DRAW; BUT HE CAN WIN ONLY IF THE SECOND PLAYER MAKES A MISTAKE

Answer to yesterday's puzzle: 1-Violet; 2-Orchid; 3-Carnation

Mediocre Bowls Card To-day

Kowloon Dock Are Likely To Repeat Earlier Success

INTERESTING RACE IN SECOND DIVISION

(By "SKIP")

SOME weeks the Lawn bowls League is crammed with interest and we have a number of "needle" matches down for decision. To-day's list is what I would call one of the "off" days, especially in the First Division, where it should be easy to select the winners in three matches.

True, Civil Service usually give Craigengower a pretty stiff fight, as they did when playing away earlier in the season, but even with the advantage of home surroundings, I cannot see them securing the better of their visitors.

A. M. Omar has regained his form, and will go back as third man to his brother, Tony Gomes reverting to his former position as lead; otherwise the team remains unchanged.

The Civil Servants were deprived by the weather last week of an opportunity to try out a new formation, which it is thought by some is stronger than any they have had out this season. They could not have had a better chance of testing this theory than in to-day's match.

K.C.C. FAVOURED

The second match is that between Kowloon C.C. and Indian Recreation Club, at Cox's Road. The Kowloon team just beat the Indians, at Sookun-poo, earlier in the season, and should have no difficulty in trebling the last margin of four shots.

Club de Recreio are at home to the Police, who will be represented by a much-changed team. The Portuguese are sound all through their rinks this season, and I am sure that their visitors will not be able to put a stop to their triumphant run.

There only remains the match between Kowloon Dock and Kowloon Bowling Green Club, in which honours were level when they last met on May 28. Though a similar result is very unlikely, I do not think that there will be much in it, and the fact that they are at home may make all the difference to the Dock team, who should win narrowly.

SECOND DIVISION RACE

With Kowloon Bowling Green Club hot on the heels of Club de Recreio in the second Division, chief interest centres in the two matches in which these two clubs are featured. The Portuguese team visit Taikoo and, although one can never be certain when visiting this very fine green, it looks a good thing for Recreio. They have their usual strong team on duty, but Taikoo do not appear to be quite up to normal strength.

"REVIEWER'S" SPORTS COMMENTARY

The 1940 Olympic Games

JUST what the final effect of William J. Bingham's resignation from the Executive Committee of the American Olympic Committee and his reasons for taking such a step as expressed in a rather informal speech at the Boston Y. M. C. A. recently, is difficult to discern at the present time; but that it will be of world-wide importance is hardly to be questioned.

In his remarks Mr. Bingham gave out as his reason for withdrawing from active participation the fact that he did not favour the holding of the games in Japan, and also the fact that the Games had been diverted from their original intent—to serve as international sports events for the athletes themselves—not to serve as sporting spectacles used for the purpose of spreading international propaganda as well as for military and political purposes. And there are thousands of followers of sports the world over who will be entirely in sympathy with these views and who will no doubt play a prominent part in determining the future of the games. What Japan is doing in China is becoming more and more repugnant to the civilised world, and it is difficult to believe that a set of Olympic Games could be held on her soil in 1940 with any degree of success. True it is that the Government of Japan has nothing to do with the running of the Games, and simply furnishes the site; but, even granting that the current undeclared war is over before 1940, there is practically no chance of that spirit of comradeship which should be a big part of the Olympics being shared by the athletes of the world if the games are held in Tokyo.

Coming to Mr. Bingham's stand that "We are dissipating an ideal in letting the Olympics get into the control, not of athletes, but of those who would use youth for their own purposes," there can be no question but that steps must sooner or later be taken to curb such a trend and get the Games back to their purpose as conceived by their founder, the late Baron Pierre de Coubertin. From a very simple and satisfactory set of games in Athens in 1896, when the renewal of the ancient games took place, those countries which have staged the affair since have added to the vastness of the undertaking each year, until 1936 found Germany lavishing great sums of money in the construction of buildings and fields never before equalled, and even surpassing, in every way, the efforts of the United States, at Los Angeles, in 1932.

With world conditions as they are to-day, it is a very difficult proposition trying to look ahead a couple of years to the time when the next Games are due to be held.

Mr. Bingham has simply attached a live fuse to a bomb which is sure to play a big part in putting the Olympic Games in their proper place in world affairs.

CURIOUSLY ENOUGH MR. BINGHAM'S ACTION IS FOLLOWED BY JAPAN'S DECISION NOT TO HOLD THE 1940 GAMES!

At Brisbane, in 1938, D. R. Jardine batted 88 minutes without scoring, which reminded one of H. L. Collins effort; at Manchester, in 1921—40 runs in 355 minutes. This was the match in which the Hon. L. H. Tennyson declared the England second innings closed illegally, and then W. W. Armstrong erroneously bowled two overs in succession.

FAGG'S BRILLIANT RECORD

Two Double Centuries Against Essex

London, To-day.

Severely flogging an Essex attack, sadly depleted by the call of the Gentlemen v. Players match at Lord's, 23-year-old Kent professional A. Fagg, set one of the most spectacular records of all time, when he scored a double-century in each innings of the match at Colchester.

Kept out of the game for the whole of last season as the result of a breakdown in health during the M.C.C. tour of India, Fagg has been gradually regaining his form of last season, but one as an opening batsman, and his performance in the match just concluded is a striking illustration of his current form.

Fagg contributed 244 to the Kent first innings total of 429, and in the second innings flogged the bowling unmercifully to score an unfinished 202 out of a total of 313 for 1.

Almost the entire Home first-class cricket programme was interrupted by rain, only three matches reaching a definite conclusion.

The Gentlemen were successful against the Players, one of the few occasions in recent years, and for this they have to thank H. T. Bartlett, former Cambridge blue, for a fine innings of 175 not out, and Kenneth Farnes for some excellent bowling, which netted eight victims in the Players' first innings at a cost of only 43 runs.

Yorkshire beat Northants, at Peterborough, and Sussex beat Gloucester by 10 wickets, at Hove.

Feast For Tennis Gourmet

A MEMORABLE WIMBLEDON

Mrs. Moody's Fine Record: And A Great Loser GERMAN DOUBLES CHALLENGE

(By AIR MAIL)

(By F. R. BURROW)

London, July 3.

WHAT a feast for the lawn tennis gourmet! Two goes of Budge; two helpings of Henkel; the sweets of America, Miss Marble and Mrs. Fabyan both in partnership and in opposition; the savoury (to the epicure) of Miss Yorke as "the last of the English," but, first and foremost, the "special dish" of a re-fought fight between the "two Helens" — Mrs. Wills-Moody and Miss Helen Jacobs—who last met on the Centre Court three years ago in one of the most breathlessly exciting finals which that hallowed enclosure has ever witnessed!

The result of this particular match must create a new record, whichever way it went. If Mrs. Moody won she would have won the singles championship eight times, and so eclipsed Mrs. Lambert Chambers' record of seven wins, which she equalled three years ago; if Miss Jacobs won she would become the first unseeded player ever to win the championship. Opium was about equally divided as to the outcome of what was certain to be a very keenly fought battle; but probably the balance was slightly tilted in favour of Mrs. Moody, with seven championships behind her as against Miss Jacobs' solitary success in 1936.

Thought it was "America all the way" (nearly), the Centre Court stands were crammed to the last place, fully as much as if most of the competitors had been home players.

A CLOSE MATCH—FOR A TIME
Before the chief event of the day was staged, the ladies' doubles final provided just the necessary appetiser.

Neither the holders of the title, Mme. Mathieu and Miss A. M. Yorke, nor the challengers, Mrs. Fabyan and Miss Marble, had reached the final without adventures by the way, and a close match was expected. And so, for a time, it looked as if it would be.

The first four games were halved, after hard fights in which Miss Yorke's volleying was prominent; but after Mrs. Fabyan and Miss Marble had got their eyes thoroughly in, their accurate overhead work and angled volleys proved too much for the lob-and-drive game of the holders, in spite of an occasional fine passing shot of Mme. Mathieu's, or one of Miss Yorke's clever interjections.

GAME OF NETCORDS

The Americans went straight away to the set, and were soon in the lead in the second set. But a misunderstanding between them let in Miss Yorke to win her service game, and another nearly, but not quite, lost the next, 3-1 to the U.S.A. A very long game in which all four played good tennis put the Americans further ahead, and within sight of victory. Miss Yorke momentarily saved the situation in a game of many netcord shots; and Mrs. Fabyan, for a wonder, threw away the next, but the and soon came, Mme. Mathieu losing her service game to love. A pair of winners well worthy of Wimbledon tradition.

Then the photographers gathered in scores as Mrs. Wills-Moody and Miss Helen Jacobs came on to the court at 2.45. The crowd rose as Queen Mary took her seat in the Royal Box, and then the hush fell, which always prelude a big Wimbledon final, as Miss Jacobs started the match.

SUPERB GENERALSHIP

And a grand match it was—for one set. But just at the end of that set Miss Jacobs hurt her ankle badly, and was merely a cripple all through the second, but she most gallantly stayed on the court, though obviously in great pain, till the end came.

That first set was worth going a long way to see. Both players were in excellent form: the rallies were long and yet exciting, owing to the superb generalship shown by the two opponents; fortune swayed one way and then the other, and it was anybody's set up to the last minute. From the start, Mrs. Moody hit much harder than she had been doing in most of her matches, but Miss Jacobs chopped away in reply, and in addition made some glorious winning punches down the side-lines.

FOUR ALL

After each had held the lead in turn, Mrs. Moody went ahead to 3-2 on Miss Jacobs' service, finishing the game with a lovely cross-drive; and then, after a very long game of fluctuating fortunes, to 4-2. Miss Jacobs having none the best of the luck, three lovely shots being an inch out. This hard-fought game took a good deal out of both players, and Mrs. Moody fell off so much that the next two both went to Miss Jacobs. Four all.

The best game of the match followed—brilliant shots by each in turn made it level pegging, and Miss Jacobs had three chances of a 5-4 lead. But Mrs. Moody was as adamantly firm as ever at these crises: her illimitable patience saved the day; and, attacking perhaps too rashly, Miss Jacobs at last lost the game. Two service aces gave Mrs. Moody the set in the next game, but unluckily Miss Jacobs' ankle, which was already bound up, went in it, and that was really the end.

A GALLANT LOSER

She was limping heavily at the start of the second set, and could not run at all. Love game followed love game to Mrs. Moody, but though Miss Jacobs was apparently advised to retire, her sheer courage would not allow her to let the rest of the match go by default. All her mobility gone, she made yet one more glorious sideline winner, but that was the only point she scored in the last few games of what had changed from a glorious match into a mere lamentable procession.

Mrs. Moody must be heartily congratulated on another of those "come-backs," at which she is such an adept: she is still the best woman player in the world, as she has been ever since Mlle. Lenglen disappeared from Wimbledon twelve years ago—a long run, worthily maintained. But the sincerest sympathy must also be given to Miss Jacobs: her pluck in enduring to the end was above praise.

TOOK TITLE BACK

D. Budge and G. Mako, striving to take the fourth Wimbledon title back to America, began their men's doubles final in great form against Henkel and Metaxa, and a break through Metaxa's service in the opening game gave them the advantage right from the start. Their neat, incisive volleying was deadly in its power and accuracy. Henkel played like a hero on the German side. No lob was put above his head, but he smashed it for a winner. His partner, however, lacked sufficient thrust on the volley to curb the attacking movements of the Americans, who deservedly won the first set 6-4.

It was obviously the tactics of the German pair to play as much as possible to Mako, for Budge was again devastating at the net, but Mako seemed to lack anticipation for interception.

UNSTEADY PAIR

The tactics paid. Metaxa, playing as well as he has ever done, was in grand volleying form, and the Americans, drive as they would, could not keep their opponents from the net. There were many delightful stop volleys from Henkel, and the games went to 3-2 on service before the Germans broke through in the sixth game to lead 4-2.

They did not let up, and against an unsteady pair took the set 6-3 to make it one set all.

All four players were serving at a great pace. Mako had improved, being far more certain overhead, and it was Henkel who was now displaying weak backhand volleys. The German lost his service for the Americans to go to 3-0. Budge drew cheers with superb overhead smashes from the back of the court, and his fluent backhand drives, taken with both feet off the ground, were untakable.

The score went to 4-1 in favour of the Americans before rain stopped play.

The Americans were now on the top of their game, and, restarting, quickly finished off the set for the lead, but they had to fight hard all the fourth before they won 8-6.

Edrich In Form

Splendid batting by Edrich provided plenty of interest in the early stages of H. H. Gibbons' benefit match on July 2.

There had been a heavy dew, but Robins decided to take first innings and Edrich promptly made some fine late cuts off the Worcestershire opening pair, Perks and Martin.

Quite early Perks had Robertson twice missed by Cooper at short fine leg. Robertson, however, did not stay long, for when at 25 Perks and Martin changed ends he nicked a ball into his stumps, the first wicket falling at 30.

Brown then joined Edrich in a profitable stand, after he had been missed when twelve off Warne at slip by Martin.

One ball from the Worcestershire slow left-arm bowler was pulled by Brown on to the pavilion roof.

Edrich refused to take risks, but completed a sound 50 in 110 minutes. At lunch time the Middlesex total was 117.

During the interval there was a terrific shower. It left pools of water on the wicket and these were soaked up by using sacking.

The sun reappeared, but the resumption was delayed until 3.15. The pitch then seemed to be lifeless. Edrich, after some big hits, was caught near the sight screen. He made 65 in two and a quarter hours.

No sooner had Edrich left than Brown fell to an easy catch at short leg. His bright 54 contained two 6's and five 4's.

Martin found the pitch responsive to his leg breaks and with only 3 runs added he clean bowled Hulme.

Meanwhile Compton played in polished style, and he and G. O. Allen put on 20 before the tea interval arrived with the total 166 for four wickets.

A Century By Wyatt

Geary, captaining an all-professional Leicestershire side, put Warwickshire in to bat on a soft pitch on July 2. For a time his policy paid, but sound innings by R. E. S. Wyatt and Dollery made the position less precarious for the home team.

Croom and Santall decided to get runs quickly, and in a quarter of an hour scored 24. Then Flansom deceived Santall. Next Geary disposed of Paine, caught at second slip, and with 5 added he beat Croom.

At this anxious stage Wyatt and Dollery came together. The introduction of Lester, bowling leg-breaks, tempted Wyatt, and twice in three balls he hit the slow bowler for 6 to leg. Thursting, too, was uncertain in length, and Wyatt cracked several boundaries.

At lunch the score was 122 for three. Wyatt, batting splendidly and determined to complete the recovery, ran to 50 out of 80 in seventy minutes, but he lost to Dollery, taken at deep mid-on, with the total up to 138.

The pitch seemed to play quite early when Ord joined Wyatt, and it looked as if Geary's gamble was going to fail. Ord hit up 29 in his first half an hour.

Ord helped Wyatt to put on 67 runs in an hour for the fifth stand before the new ball brought about the downfall of Ord, taken at the wicket.

Geary switched his attack about, but nothing could unsettle Wyatt until Armstrong was introduced at 250. Then Wyatt mistimed a drive and fell to a catch at backward point. In two hours fifty minutes Wyatt scored 107 out of 200, and hit two sixes and seven 4's.

Cranmer played with enterprise, and at tea-time Warwickshire were 285 for six wickets.

Presentation To Players

Before the start of the match Dollery and Buckingham were presented with silver cigarette cases as mementoes of their record sixth wicket stand against Derbyshire last month.

Their partnership added 220, and enabled Warwickshire to force a great victory.

K.C.C. "B"

At Causeway Bay yesterday, Chinese Recreation Club won the Mixed Doubles League title for the fourth time, when they just managed to beat Kowloon Cricket Club "B" by the odd set in nine, the visitors taking all three sets in the first round and led 4 sets to 2 in the second, only to concede the match in the final round.

The Chinese took things much too easily as a result of which their opponents shot into a commanding lead, from which they nearly caused a major sensation.

BENNY LYNCH AND WORLD TITLE

The Overweight Scandal

PLUCKY FIGHT BY JURICH

(By AIR MAIL)

Glasgow, July 3.

THE common practice of champions making their matches, other than those for their titles, at a few pounds overweight has for some years been little short of a scandal. When a champion appears in a boxing contest, whether for the title or otherwise, the spectators are entitled to assume that they are seeing him at his best.

To come overweight merely provides him with an excuse should he lose, as champions have constantly done in the past in matches where their titles were not at stake. The Boxing Board of Control are rightly strict as to the weight contracted for being made, and not long ago they fined Lynch himself £200 for being over the weight he had agreed to for a contest.

But the practice of boxing at a weight exceeding that which must be made for a championship contest is bound to make it more difficult for a boxer to reduce to the required weight when that is necessary, and this is apparently what happened to Lynch in his match with Jurich for the world's flyweight championship.

It is notorious that it is hard work for Lynch to get down to 8 st. but hitherto he has always succeeded in doing so when his championship was at stake.

IMPOSSIBLE TASK

At Glasgow, however, after Jurich, the American challenger, had weighed in at 7st. 12½ lb., it was found that Lynch was no fewer than 6½ lb. overweight. The champion was given an hour to get the weight off, but the task was obviously impossible, and under the rules of the British Boxing Board of Control Lynch automatically forfeited his world title.

This does not, however, mean that Jurich became champion, for championships in this country can only be won in the ring. It would appear that Lynch is still British and Empire champion, for these titles were not at stake.

GOOD PERFORMANCE

No doubt, to reduce the heavy financial loss which would have resulted from the abandonment of the contest Jurich consented to meet Lynch at catchweight, and, after a gruelling contest in which he was several times sent down for long counts, the American was knocked out in the twelfth round.

As he was probably giving away nearly a stone by the time of the contest, this was a good performance on Jurich's part, and it is to be hoped that the heavy punishment he took will not affect him unduly. It is a pity he should have received it, as he is still under twenty years of age, and even a few pounds are a tremendous handicap to men in the lighter weights. Jurich is certainly entitled to be one of the contestants when the world championship is decided, and he will probably stay in this country for the purpose. Interest in flyweight contests is much greater in this country than in the United States, and purses are proportionately higher.

UTILISE THE TAKEOUT DOUBLE

Many players fail to realise that the takeout double is the most useful weapon available to the opponents of the opening bidder. Like wise, some players erroneously believe that a double is for takeout purposes only when made by the player at the left of the opening bidder. The takeout double serves a two-fold purpose: It informs partner that the doubler has an unusually strong hand, and at the same time requests information as to his strength and distribution. The following hand, played in a Rubber Bridge game recently, illustrates this point.

East, Dealer
Both sides vulnerable

 ♦ K 7
 ♣ 9 7 6 5 3

The bidding—
 East South West North
 1♠ Pass 2♠ (dbl) Dbt
 Pass 3♥ Pass 4♥
 Pass Pass Pass

With both sides vulnerable, East dealt and bid one spade. South passed and West raised to two spades. North's powerful hand presented a problem. A bid of three hearts would be extremely dangerous, and many players would have made a simple overcall of three diamonds. The takeout double solved the problem. North wished to inform his partner that he held a powerful hand, and in particular, support for hearts—the other major suit. Note that South made the proper response of three hearts, giving preference to his four-card suit over his five-card club suit. North's raise to game was slightly risky, but it did not look as though this contract could be severely penalised even if his partner held a bust. Fortunately Declarer turned up with two vital cards—the King of spades and the King of diamonds, so that he had no difficulty in making his contract.

At the end of the hand North was asked what he would have done if his partner had responded with three clubs. He admitted that he would not have cared much for the club response, and hence would have taken out to three diamonds. Thus, he concluded, his partner would still have had an opportunity to show a four-card heart suit with the perfectly knowledge that substantial heart support would be forthcoming.
